Notes

Hyphen, Dash, and Ellipsis

- “No,” I said. “I (- or – or ...) I need my space.”

- Hyphen

- Also known as “en-dash”
- Shows a word break
- Combines certain compound words (great-grandmother)
- Used in fractions (one-half)

I'm bigger than you

people like me more

Hyphen, Dash, and Ellipsis

▪ Dash

- Also known as “em-dash”
- Shows sudden change in thought (“Hey you—no, not you—yes, you.”)
- Used before a summary of what is stated in the sentence
- Also used for when a character is interrupted (“He was such a piece of—”)

▪ Ellipsis

- Also known as ...
- A break in continuity; a deleted of words or sentences
- Also can show a gentler pause or disruption in speech

Team Builder: “Talking Chips”

A S S I G N M E N T

Background:

- Used for equal participation during discussion in teams

Directions:

- Each team member starts with 3 chips
- Each time team member asks a question, answers a question, or engages in discussion, they place a chip inside the center of the team
- When your chips run out, you cannot talk until everyone’s chips are in the center of the table
- Redistribute chips, keep going

Share Reading Log #7

A S S I G N M E N T

- Round robin questions from Reading Log #7
- Use the CHIPS
- Hampton will be around
- Finished early? Work on homework.
