

1. Del Toro remarks that his teacher believed that books “contain all the answers.” What does this mean...and do you agree with it? Support your answer with relevant details or experiences.
2. What do you think Del Toro means when he says that books have a “specific mass, weight” and that its “words live in you; its gospel is forever”? Support your answer with relevant details or experiences.
3. What does Del Toro mean when he says that “all reading should be nonrequired”? Do you agree with this statement? Support your answer with relevant details or experiences.
4. What does Del Toro mean when he says “answers can only aspire to be important...answers are science, [but] questions are poetry”? Do you agree with this statement? Support your answer with relevant details or experiences.